

Geometry Parameters and Analysis Tricks for Fluid-Structure Interaction

Prof. Dr. Karoline Dissler (Universität Kassel)

In fluid-structure interaction problems, the dynamics typically depends qualitatively on local and global geometric parameters of the structure. There are many ways in which this can affect the analysis of the corresponding partial differential equations. In the talk, we discuss some of these parameters and the techniques that can be used to handle them mathematically.